(READING)

(1 – 5) : Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow :

Many centuries ago, there lived an old merchant. All his life he had toiled hard, buying and selling, with the result that he had made a lot of money. As the years went by he laid by more and more riches. But the day came when he felt that he had not long to remain in this world. He began to wonder what he should do with his money.

He had two sons. He made up his mind that he would not divide his money between them, but that he would give it all to the one who proved himself to be cleverer of the two. The problem to be solved was that of finding out which of the two sons was the cleverer. He decided to solve this problem by giving them a test.

Calling the young men, he said to them, “Here are two rupees. I want you to take one rupee each, and then to go out separately and buy something which will fill this house. You are not to spend more than one rupee.”

The two sons looked at him as if he had lost his senses. “How can we possibly buy enough of anything to fill the house with only one rupee ?” They asked themselves. And they were reluctant to pick up the rupees. But the old man insisted on their doing as he told them.

So each young man took up a rupee and went out. The first one wandered through the bazaar but nothing could he find. He was about to give up his search in despair, when he saw a bullock cart with a heap of hay. “I wonder how much hay I can get for a rupee”, he thought. He was able to buy the heap of hay for a rupee. So this young man led off the cart with the hay to his father’s house. He piled the hay in the house, but found that there was not enough to cover even the floor, let alone fill the whole house.

The second son went out with his rupee. Instead of going straightway to the bazaar, he sat thinking for a long time about what he could possibly buy. At length, at evening time, an idea struck him. Taking his rupee he came to a shop in the bazaar where candles were sold. He spent his rupee on candles, of which he got quite a number. Taking his candles he made his way back to his father's house.

It was getting dark. Quickly the second son lit two candles in each room. At once the house was filled-with light.

His father was very pleased with him and said, "My son you have shown true wisdom. I am ready to handover all my money to you."

I was angry with my friend ;

I was angry with my foe ;
I told it not, my wrath did grow.

And I water'd it in fears,
Night and morning with my tears;
And I sunned it with smiles,
And with soft deceitful wiles
And it grew both day and night
Till it bore an apple bright
And my foe beheld it shine.
And he knew that it was mine.

And into my garden stole
When the night had veil'd the pole
In the morning glad I see
My foe outstretch'd beneath the tree.
